

New Jersey's consumer protection laws SHOULD NOT be weakened. The FCC is over stepping their bounds by interfering with a state that has laws that are stronger than provided under a federal agency.

New Jersey has one of the strictest in the country laws in the country for annoying telemarketing calls. Most of these calls come at the most unopportune times. Further, private information is shared with these "third parties" that solicit. These coporate pests do not have a right to intrude on my family time or run up my cell phone bill.
